BROOKLYN, N. Y. BROOKLYN, N. Y.

A DAY MENORABLE TO POLARDERS. The Contonney of the Constitution of May 8 to be Colebrated in this City.

On May 3, 1791, a new Constitution was pro-mulgated by the Diet of Poland which gave political rights to the cities, civil rights to the peasantry, made the throne hereditary, and asserted Poland's independence more strongly than it had ever been asserted before. But than it had ever been asserted before. But there were people who adhered to the old order of things, and they invoked the powerful aid of Catharine IL. Empress of Bussia. The Bus-sians entered Poland, Prussia did not keep her promise to support the Poles, Kosciusko's splendid fight at Dubjenka was useless and Poland was reduced, if not to slaverr at least to a worse condition than had ever been her lot before and her territory was divided among her conquerors.

her conquerors.

May 8, 1891, is the centennial of the promulgation of this unfortunate Constitution and the Poles in this country will celebrate it in a unique manner. The patriotic feeling in Po-land is still strong, and nothing would be halled with greater joy there than permission from the ruling Government to celebrate this centennial. But as that is out of the question, the celebration in this country will be the more the celebration in this country will be the more patriotic.

The demonstration in this city will be a Catholic one. Poland is a Catholic country, and in no other part of the world is there such a popular and intense anti-Semitic feeling. On account of the enormous immigration of Polish Jews to this country, the name of Poland has come to be connected with the Jewish religion. The men who are in charge of the demonstration in this city say that the Jewish population will not be represented, and will have nothing at all to do with it. There are about 20,000 Poles in this city, of whom less than one-third are Catholics.

As May 3 falls on Sunday the real celebra-

Poles in this city, of whom less than one-third are Catholics.

As May 3 falls on Sunday the real celebration will be postponed until the next day. There will be a solemn high mass in St. Stanisiaus's Roman Catholic Church, 43 Stanton stress, on Sunday. On Monday morning there will be a pontifical high mass in the same church. It is not yet known who will officiate at this mass, but it is thought that it will be Archbishop Corrigan. All the Polish societies will gather in front of the church after the mass and form in line. Many of the paraders will be in the costume of Poland of a century ago, while others will wear the dress that is now worn by the Polish peasantry. The ecclesiastical accistics, St. Joseph and St. Aloysus Gonzaco, will head the parade. After them will come the military and the benevolent societies. There will be dejunctions from all the big cities in this country where there are any Poles, and it is expected that some of the cities of Poland will send over dejegations.

where there are any roller, and will send over that some of the cities of Poland will send over delegations.

The details of the line of march have not yet been decided upon. From the church the parade will proceed to Union square where an address in English will !e delivered by Mrs. Falix Kraemen Mrs. Kraemer is an accomplished Polish woman, who is enthusiastically patriotic and is connected with many of the Polish accreties here. Her husband, who is a German, is connected with the firm of Steinway & Sons. She will describe the condition of Poland at the time when the Constitution was promutigated, and tell of all the wrongs which have been inflicted on her native country. Then she will thank the United States for the hospitality which has been extended to her countrymen. From Union square the parade will march to Sulzer's Harlem River Park, where the afternoon will be spent in merrymaking. There will be music, dancing, and games, all thoroughly imbued with the spirit of Polish patriotism. On the way from Union square to Sulzer's Park there will be living tableaux in the parade on wagons decorated for the purpose. The actors will all be in appropriate costume, and the scenes represented will be:

1. Poland in its fourishing time.

2. Poland divided.

will be:

1. Foland in its flourishing time.
2. Foland divided.
2. Foland in captivity. This will be represented by men clad in the old Folish ecctume, and loaded down with chains. Standing over them with uplitted swords will be three Austran soldiers, three Rossian soldiers, dad one Frussian soldier. The proportion is derived from the division of Foland among these three countries that being the proportion of territory which they seland.

4. Kesciusko and some of his Generals.

On entering the park there will be an imposing salute with old Polish flags. In the evening the paraders will march to Cooper Union, where speeches will be made.

This is an outline of the programme. In the course of three weeks it will probably be completed, and it will be extended considerably.

DEFECTS OF THE BALLOT LAW. Civil Justice Mitchell Suggests Severa Remedial Amendments. Nearly every man who was interested in the provisions of the new ballot law before election lost this interest as soon as the election was over and thought no more of it. Civil Justice Peter Mitchell has continued the study of it. He says that its defects have been discovered, and that the Legislature should not adjourn without remedying them. One thing he com-plains of is the fact that many of the booths were so dark that it was impossible to read the ballots. Again, the process of voting was so ballots. Again the process of voting was so slow that the spaces reserved for voters were frequently blocked up.

Requiring the voter to fold twelve or fourteen ballots which are not voted but are thrown into a waste box or basket and destroyed, he says, so retards the voter that thousands who intended to vote became so disgusted after long waiting, that they would not remain and so lost their votes. He suggests these remedies:

long waiting, that they would not remain and so lost their votes. He suggests these remedies:

First—Let the Police Commissioners require the police Captains to select suitable well-lighted piaces, regardless of expense, or build booths in the street.

Second—Adopt a stricter sot of rules for the government of the inspectors.

Third—Let the law be so amended, and made mandatory, that the inspectors within the polling places shall have the right, and shall be required, to give advice and instructions as to folding balots, &c., when requested by the voter so to do.

Fourth—A person who is legally entitled to vote should not be deprived of his vote, even though after unsuccessful attempts to fold his ballots he has gone out into the street for further instructions on that head.

A clause should be inserted in the law that every positing place and the booths erected therein hould be so lighted, artificially if necessary, as to enable every person to read the ballots; and an omission to do so should be made a misdemennor.

The voter should be compelled to fold only the ballot which he intends to yote. The remaining ballots should be put in large envelopes prepared for the purpose, or rolled up and handed to the clerk to be dropped into a basker. This would obviste the present very objectionable feature of compelling a voter to fold useless and waste ballots, and would have a tendency to expedite voting and to prevent econymaton.

The vections being conducted under the law of the lists by letter of the street of the converse.

confusion.

The elections being conducted under the aws of the State by State officers, no unwarrantable interference with a voter by a marshal should be tolerated for an instant. In conclusion, every fine in the new ballot law that tends to restrict the free and expeditious right of suffrage should be eliminated, and the good features preserved and strictly enforced.

The Sicilians Among Us. An Italian ethnologist in speaking of the secultarities of the Sicilians, says: peculiarities of the Sicilians, says:

"There can be no doubt that there is a Punio strain in the bleed of the Sicilian people. In ancient times the island of Maita, which was lear held by the Carthagtalana, was the half-way station between Carthage and Sicily, and fir George Sewas has recently shown that the Maltees are about the last surviving remnant of the Car haginian branch of the Old Phomician people. The base of the Maltess language as spoken to-day is Carthagrainan, which was spoken by the lather of Hannibal, who was at one time Governor of Malta.
"Many of the Maltess of the Phoenician stock crossed to bicity in early times and mingled with the Latins there for generations; and some of the peculiarities of the modern Sicilians that do not belong to other Italians, and that have recently been much spoken of in the United States, where there are now many Sicilians, are the outgrowth of this Phoenician strain in their bleed."

An Unfortunate Man Who Once Saw Better

PHILADELPHIA, March 21.-William Dough erty, a brother of Daniel Dougherty, was found lead last evening in the cellar of the residence of the Rev. Dr. George Dana Boardman, 3,829 He was very wet from the flerce rain storm when he came to the door, and the servant invited him to come inside. While she went to pened to come in. The heater in the cellar was out of order, and she caked him to step into out of order, and she raked him to step into the cellar and try to fix it. Dougherty said he would try to, and he went into the cellar, where he was heard moving around.

In the mean time food had been prepared and was waiting for him in the kitchen. As the stranger did not put in an appearance in a quarter of an hour the servant was sent to not what had become of him, she peered cautiously into the cellar. The man whom she sought was dead. He was lying face in front of the furnace. The entire household was aroused and a messanger was sent for a policeman, who had the body removed to the station house.

Assarch of the man's clothing failed to revail his identity. There was a piece of paper in his pockets with the pame of "Grang" written on it. While the bedy was lying at the station house, it was viewed by many personal amang them as old man well known in Irah circles. He recognized the dead man as William Dougherty, brother of the well-known silver-tongued orator.

Barted from His Wife's House. Henry Aveling was buried in the Actors' Fund plot in the Evergreens Cemetery yesterday. The funeral took place from the apartments of his wife and his mother-in-law, at 229 East Fourteenth street, at 11 o'clock. Only a few friends and members of the "Paul kauvar" company were admitted. There were several handsome floral designs. The Episcopalian service was read.

Found a House-furnished Cave. BNOW HILL, Md.. March 21.—A party of coon hunters lost their way the other night in what is known as the "Burnt Swamp," near Whaleyis known as the "Burnt Swamp," near Whaleyville in this county. With the aid of a pine torch they were pushing their way through the roots and water, when one of the party called attention to a pathway which had evidently leen made many years sgo. Aiter a consultation it was decided to take the leaten track, with the hope that it would lead them out of the labyrinth. They had proceeded only a short distance when their leader suddently disappeared from sight. Hastening forward, they found that their companion had fallen into a hole, which seemed to have been made by an uproofed tree and filled with about two feet of water. Uron further investigation, however, it was found by removing a large stone imbedded in the earth on one side, that this was the entrance to a subterrancean cave. There was plenty of room to crawl through, and the first to enter found himself in a partly furnished room. He called to his companions, who were only too glad to find shelter for the night. A further examination revealed two other apartments leading from the first. All were of good size, dry, and comfortable. In one was lound the remains of a rust-caten cook stove, and in the remains of a rust-caten cook stove, and in the third six bunks partially filled with decayed straw and swamp mess. The supposition is that this underground habitation was made during the latter part of the war. Twenty-second Regiment Voteron Club
